BACKGROUND

The South East Asian Public Health Educational Institutes Network (SEAPHEIN) was officially launched on 7 April 2004 with 54 Public Health Education Institute Members from various countries including Nepal. It exists to facilitate collaboration among its member institutions to develop a process of strengthening capability throughout the region. SEAPHEIN promotes technical activities, including educational system reform, workforce development and collaborative research between and among network members. The network undertakes training partnerships between member institutions, promote novel approaches education/training program provision and assist in the development of country plans and strategies.

The SEAPHEIN conducts its meeting annually to share current activities with its members and plan future programs and for the effective networking and coordination between universities. This year, SEAPHEIN is organizing annual meeting at Hotel Everest in Kathmandu, Nepal on 26th – 28th November 2011 which is going to be hosted by Nepal Public Health Foundation in coordination with Nepal PHEIN. In Addition, there will a symposium on “The Role of SEAPHEIN Members in Strengthening Primary Health Care to Improve Public Health of People in the Respected Countries”.
